Soon Jane was very busy. She went in to the city early every morning and came home very late. She was working hard, but she was also enjoying herself very much.

“So, how do you like New York?” asked Sam one day. It was the end of Jane’s first week.

“Well, in some ways San Francisco is a nicer city,” said Jane. “()
The air is cleaner and so are the streets. People in California don’t leave their garbage on the sidewalks. ()”

“Also, San Francisco has less crime. I was never afraid there. But here people are always afraid. My friends in New York have strong locks on their doors. () They’re always telling me to be careful on the streets.”

“And there’s another nice thing about San Francisco. () If you’re lost you can ask anyone for information. They’re always glad to help you. Not here in New York! Everyone here is always in a hurry. () They walk faster and they drive faster. I think they even talk faster!”

第4問 次の英文を読んで、 から の空所に、それぞれ下の1)～4)の中から最も適切なものを1つずつ選んで入れ、文脈が通るようにしなさい。

Larry Walters was a truck driver, but his lifetime dream was to fly aeroplanes. All day long he would watch the fighter jets criss-crossing the skies above his back garden and dream about the magic of flying. , he had an idea. He drove to the nearest hardware shop and bought twenty large balloons and five tanks of helium. , they were not normal brightly-coloured party balloons but heavy one-metre weather balloons used by meteorologists.

Back in his garden, , Larry used a rope to tie a chair to his car door. Next he tied the balloons to the chair and inflated them, one one. Finally, he packed a few sandwiches and a bottle of Coke, loaded an air-pistol, and climbed on to the chair. His plan was to float up lazily into the sky to about sixty metres, and then to pop a few balloons descend to earth again.

His preparations complete, Larry cut the rope. , he didn't float up, he shot up, as if he had been fired from a cannon! Not to sixty metres, but up and up and up, until about 3,500 metres. If he had popped any balloons at this height, he would have plummeted to earth, so he just had to stay up there, floating around and wondering what to do.

, night was falling and things were getting serious. Winds were blowing Larry out to sea. Fortunately, just at that moment an amazed British Airways pilot spotted him and radioed the airport saying he'd just seen a man with a gun, sitting on a garden chair at 3,500 metres. a helicopter was sent to rescue him, but it wasn't easy because the wind from their rotor blades kept pushing the home-made airship further away. , they managed to drop a line down from above, and pulled him to safety. he was on the ground he was arrested. A TV reporter shouted, 'Hey mate, why did you do it?' Larry looked him in the eye, and said, 'A man's got to follow his dreams.'
